Progress Update

In May 2017, the Government granted approval for the investment required to enable the National Paediatric Hospital Development Board to award the construction contracts for the building of a beautiful design for this state-of-the-art children's hospital and the two Paediatric Outpatients and Urgent Care Centres at Tallaght Hospital & Connolly Hospital.

This work has been carried out on behalf of the Children's Hospital Group which, together with the Boards, executives, clinicians and staff of the three Dublin children's hospitals, as well as, current and former patients and their families, has helped to inform all aspects of the design to ensure that it meets the current and future clinical needs of Ireland's sickest children and young people and the local needs of the greater Dublin area.

Full planning permission for the hospital, the two Paediatric Outpatients and Urgent Care Centres, a Children's Research and Innovation Centre and a 53-unit family accommodation centre was granted by An Bord Pleanála in April last year. A comprehensive tendering process was completed recently to select a construction company to complete the build of the hospital and the two Paediatric Outpatients and Urgent Care Centres. A construction contract has now been awarded to BAM Building Ltd, the 12-acre site on the St James's Hospital campus is almost cleared and is now ready for the laying of foundations for the new children's hospital.
